10.1.1.0 Advancement for Cub Scouts With Special Needs

Advancement is so flexible that, with guidance, most Cub Scouts with disabilities can complete requirements as is. The standard is, "Has the Cub Scout done his or her best?" It may take Cub Scouts with disabilities longer to attempt requirements and demonstrate their best, but the accomplishments will be rewarding to all involved.

10.1.2.1 Open-Minded Flexibility

Allowances for Scouts BSA members are made in three ways. The simplest is an open-minded reading of the requirement, after learning about the Scout and how the special need or disability affects that Scout. If the requirement can be met as written, but in an unconventional or creative way, that is sufficient.

Tenderfoot, Second Class, and First Class Ranks Alternative Requirements

10.1.2.6 Alternative Merit Badges for Eagle Scout Rank.

An Application for Alternative Eagle Scout Rank Merit Badges (www.scouting.org/advancement), can be submitted after a Scout has earned First Class. The application must identify the merit badge(s) that the Scout can do and suggest an alternative merit badge(s) for those the Scout cannot do.
